Wakelet is using cookies to help give you the best experience we can.Q: SQL Group by by multiple columns I have the following table (tbl_products) postcode, series, image, class I would like to use SQL to return a result like the following postcode, series, image, class, number of shows Basically, I would like to group by by postcode and series but then group multiple images by class. I know I can do it with two simple joins but I cannot seem to figure out how to do it with one. Any suggestions are greatly appreciated A: This should do what you want, but I cannot test it: SELECT postcode, series, image, class, (select count(*) from tbl_products group by class) AS number_of_shows FROM tbl_products; Otherwise you could join to tbl_products twice: SELECT pc.postcode, ss.series, im.image, cl.class, p.number_of_shows FROM tbl_products AS p LEFT JOIN tbl_products AS p2 on p.class = p2.class and p.postcode = p2.postcode LEFT JOIN tbl_products AS p3 on p.class = p3.class and p.postcode = p3.postcode LEFT JOIN tbl_products AS p4 on p.class = p4.class and p.postcode = p4.postcode; Q: Do threads get killed after the specified time period passed? I'm trying to understand how threads in my embedded OS are scheduled. A thread's state is SUSPENDED and can be woken up or 3ef4e8ef8d
