Digital Communications By Ganesh Rao. The kinetics of single-threaded binding of a mono-N-acetylglucosamine-specific lectin from Musca domestica L. (pea moth) to Escherichia coli. Single-threaded binding kinetics of Musca domestica L. (pea moth) agglutinin (Mda-1) and its binding to the lipopolysaccharide of Escherichia coli O9:K12 have been studied. The rate of adsorption of the lectin to the bacterial cells increased with the increase in lectin concentration to the critical concentration of the saturating effect. The binding was reversible at all concentrations used. The critical
